Simply Services AG

Simply Services AG demonstrates it values its team.

Good quality office furnishing as mark of appreciation.

Following a relocation, insurance consultancy Simply Services AG took the opportunity to rethink their office design. They opted for a high quality interior scheme to emphasise how the company values its team, using colours and materials chosen to promote an immediate sense of wellbeing.

"Lista Office LO always took our input and wishes seriously and implemented them successfully."

Volkan Doldur

The concept

The aim of the new office concept is to intensify dialogue between employees. The 68 spacious and open-plan workstations are spread over two storeys. Light-brown lockers dominate the office furnishings. The acoustic partitions between two workstations are also a friendly light-brown colour. The black office swivel chairs, on the other hand, are modelled on the dark carpet and thus blend inconspicuously into the room. Simply Services AG deliberately chose the colours in the new offices to create a pleasant atmosphere for employees and customers.

One highlight is the lounge with kitchen, elevated countertop, and inviting swivel armchairs in lead grey. Other zones such as meeting and consultation rooms or retreats complement the two open-plan offices.

"We wanted the zoning and utilisation of the space to be optimally tailored to the requirements of the individual departments," says CEO Volkan Doldur. "Lista Office LO has successfully realised our needs in the new office concept."

Carletto AG

Carletto AG showcases toys in the office.

Discreet furniture as contrast to colourful retail products.

For toymaker Carletto AG, day-to-day business is all about toys. The unassuming design of the company's office furnishings ensures that the colourful products on the shelves are presented to their best effect.

"Disdreet office furniture was important to us, as part ensuring our Toys could be showcased effectively."

Adress:	carletto.ch

The concept

The high-ceilinged rooms at the Carletto AG site are kept simple with exposed concrete, while the colour scheme of dark turquoise, crimson and pinewood lends energy to the ambiance. However, it's the toys displayed throughout the office that take centre stage.

"We made the deliberate decision to keep the desks and swivel chairs as unobtrusive as possible", says Lilly Gygax, responsible for marketing at the Carletto Group. "We wanted it to be the interior colour scheme, the colourful accents on the shelves, and most of all our brightly coloured toys that bring our office to life." The unassuming height-adjustable desks, swivel chairs and acoustic partitions create a subtle backdrop to the welcoming, colourful atmosphere.

Some of the shelves have irregular round openings in their backs; others are fully closed or open. They give structure to the generous space, while providing plenty of storage. There are also tambour cabinets and lockers for additional storage.

As well as the bright, friendly work spaces, there are several options for smaller gatherings – three meeting rooms, a showroom and a workshop area. The larger areas are equipped with triangular tables on rollers – these offer maximum flexibility as they can be clicked together or kept separate as desired.

Touring Club Suisse TCS

Six locations converge at a new 9000 m² site.

More momentum and meaningful interactions in everyday office life.

The Touring Club Suisse (TCS) recently opened new administrative headquarters in Ostermundigen, uniting 530 employees from six different locations. Excellently designed, the new office concept combines open plan spaces with small offices. Lista Office LO guided TCS through the planning process and supplied virtually all the furnishings for the new offices.

"Lista Office LO displayed a high level of commitment and provided us with comprehensive advice. We were deeply impressed by their proactive cooperation and hard work."

The concept

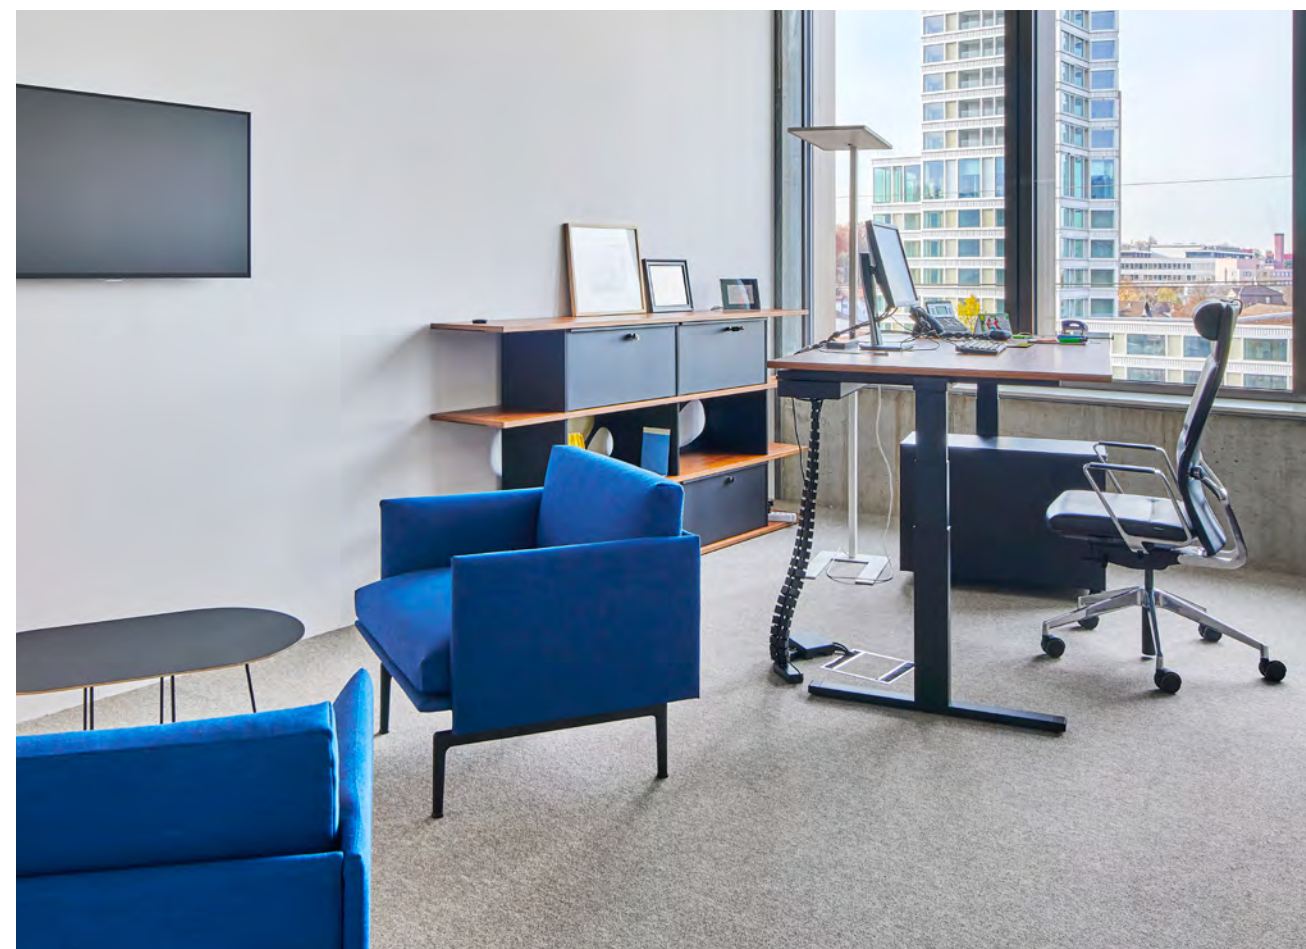

The Touring Club Suisse (TCS) recently centralised its administrative headquarters at a site in the German-speaking part of Switzerland. Some 530 employees, previously spread over six locations, have now moved into the newly-built offices in Ostermundigen. These offer a total of 566 workplaces, spread over a generous 9000 m² of office space. The previous sites had no consistent interior furnishing concept, as Marin Pavlovic, Head of Real Estate for the Touring Club Suisse, explains. "The furniture at the different locations consisted of a mishmash of brands, colours and materials – sometimes even within one and the same office. Relocating the furniture would have been pointless due to the high cost of adjustments and acquiring additional furnishings." As a result, TCS opted for a completely fresh approach to furnishing the new offices in Ostermundigen. The timeless office design which Lista Office LO helped to develop combines a judicious mix of open plan spaces for up to 100 employees with one-person, two-person and four-person offices. The site also houses conference rooms and a quiet room. Most of the employees had never worked in an open plan office before, so it's been a huge change for them – but feedback has been overwhelmingly positive. "We've been able to observe more momentum and meaningful interactions between employees. The different departments collaborate more closely and information is shared more efficiently. Everything is closer to hand," summarises Marin Pavlovic with a satisfied smile. The employees are also delighted with the height-adjustable desks that enable them to work more ergonomically.

As well as modernising the interior design, TCS also focused on digitalisation. As a result, workplace storage space for private belongings and business documents was kept to a minimum. "This was part of our digitalisation strategy," explains Marin Pavlovic. "By providing less space for paperwork, we're encouraging our staff to digitalise their processes." TCS based their calculations for the amount of storage space per employee on an average value and followed the advice given by Lista Office LO.

The new pebble grey furnishings harmonise beautifully with the timeless light grey of most of the walls, while warmer colours have been included in the carpets, individual wall areas and selected furnishings to add a more homely touch to the office atmosphere. 90 % of the furnishings were supplied by Lista Office LO, and Marin Pavlovic is full of praise for the interior furnishings specialist. "We benefitted from their professional, proactive advice, and are delighted with the high quality furnishings," he says. "The planning and implementation phases ran smoothly and on schedule from start to finish. We can warmly recommend Lista Office LO!"

Freedom of movement in the workplace.

Swisscom has established a centre for highly specialised ICT developers in Rotterdam. The offices are on the eighteenth floor of the imposing World Trade Center in the heart of the city. The Rotterdam ICT developer centre aims to attract highly qualified young talent from all round the world. Standing/sitting workstations by Lista Office LO are making an important contribution to the health and efficiency of the ICT experts.

"We have been working with Lista Office LO since 1988 as our competent partner for office furnishing. We really appreciate their no-fuss, flexible and attentive service."

The concept

For the developers, 76 ergonomic work-stations have been set up in "Team Zones" on three "Working Floors". The freely adjustable standing desks supplied by Lista Office LO offer superb working comfort and freedom to move. Stefania Rosati is enthusiastic about the benefits: "They help promote employee health and boost efficiency. The attractive desk design is another efficiency bonus: our staff love their appealing workplaces. And people who are happy in their work environment automatically get more done." Along with the sitting/standing desks, Lista Office LO also supplied four elegant conference tables that immediately give a lift to the atmosphere at meetings, as well as fostering team creativity and innovative spirit. The team zones segue seamlessly into the "Common Areas", where people can scribble freely on all the walls or work peacefully by a window. The Working Floors are completed with a comfortable entrance hall dotted with plants and sofas and equipped with a kitchenette, where the developers can relax during short breaks.

For more extended socialisation, they can move to the two "Social Floors". Here, the ICT experts have the use of a kitchen over 10m long to cook, eat, and relax with a drink after work. Stefania Rosati is delighted: "Our kitchen is a meeting point for international cultures." Next to the big kitchen, the staff have access to an extensive workshop area, which can be flexibly reorganised to meet immediate needs thanks to "Hackable Furniture". Another popular space is the Game Zone, which boasts a 6m2 video wall and a virtual aquarium. Last but not least, the Social Floors are rounded off by a laboratory housing the servers and ICT support for the developers.

zubischuhe.ch AG

Creating a sense of identity and fostering communication – a modern, versatile office set-up.

A perfect fit for the Zubi DNA.

If a company's main store and its offices are separated by a physical distance, how can you bridge that gap? For the shoes and outdoors business Zubischuhe, Lista Office LO designed an office set-up that fosters communication and brings the stylish flair of the store into the offices too.

"Working with Lista Office LO, we critically reviewed our existing structures – and devised a new, collaborative workplace."

The concept

A company’s image plays a key role in creating a sense of identity and belonging for its employees. Image is defined by values such as transparency, honesty and trust, as well as by the look and feel of the employees’ workplace. Zubischuhe has an open team culture, builds close relations with its customers and is a byword for expert advice and assistance on all things shoes and outdoors. To accommodate the company’s growing workforce, the management team decided to move the offices to separate premises.

The move to the spacious new premises in the city’s industrial quarter brought with it a number of challenges. As well as dividing up the space in a way geared to maximising performance, it was necessary to somehow bridge the physical distance between the offices and the main store. Lista Office LO worked with Imholz Architektur & Design to create a modern office set-up that fosters an open team culture and effective communication. Wooden walls were installed in the same style as those used in the store, which add character, create a sense of identity and allow the space to be intelligently divided into workstations, meeting areas and sound-proofed booths for focused work. The result is an office space that’s fit for the 21st century and feels close to the main store despite the physical separation.

The concept

The long-established Swiss company has shaken up its decades-old layout and switched from individual offices to an open-plan workplace. In combination with smart, flexible furniture solutions from Lista Office LO, the new office facilitates communication within the team while also providing separate spaces for one-to-one meetings and work in smaller groups. This new spirit of open communication has brought positive disruption to all hierarchical levels right up to the CEO, whose office now doubles as the main meeting room.

Versatile, inviting and authentic, the new office breaks down barriers between team members and provides them with a flexible, multifunctional working environment. It also features a huge parquet floor, a best-practice solution so brilliantly realised by Lista Office LO that Bauwerk Parkett now often simply brings its customers to the office rather than the showroom.

LO Next amazes with its ability to serve as both a team space and a personal space. Thanks to the integrated electronic closing system, it is user-friendly and efficient in equal measure.

The concept, created by Greutmann Bolzern Designstudio, includes a diverse range of working zones on each floor. In the focus-centric "Office for a day", in lounges and group work rooms, employees' current tasks are supported by the individually selected working environment. “New Work” in natural colours for wellbeing.

When work and life blend into one.

A new office design, based on “New Work” principles, has made adesso Schweiz AG’s business location in central Bern even more attractive to staff, with an atmosphere that cultivates discussion. The interplay between the high quality office fittings and soft, nature-inspired colour scheme, promotes a sense of wellbeing and boosts productivity.

“From the very first second of the project until the very last, I felt fantastically supported and in good hands.”

The concept

IT service provider adesso Schweiz AG is based at an office in central Bern. Bubenbergplatz 8 is an attractive location close to the main train station. And the freshly renovated office, based on “New Work” principles, is fully worthy of its superb position. Open office spaces and friendly discussion zones promote interaction and team collaboration. Small meeting rooms, newly integrated quiet zones, and the soundproof “Framery” boxes create private oases for concentrated work. Professional office equipment, including glass whiteboards and pinboards, emphasises the “New Work” standard and teams perfectly with practical height-adjustable desks. “We welcome remote working”, says Deputy CEO Michaela Gasser. “However, we do want the revamp to make the office inviting to our team, and encourage people to come into the office.”

Improved acoustics and a congenial pastel colour scheme complete the harmonious atmosphere in the renovated office. Soft green tones and dark turquoise shades are set off by light blue to create a pleasant, peaceful atmosphere and foster creativity, concentration, and productivity. The colour scheme is complemented by the elegant storage space: mint-green and olive-brown lockers and light-brown shelving.

The various discussion and social zones are equipped with tables and chairs with a wood and steel design, which pull together the natural colour scheme with a modern twist. The welcoming atmosphere is also given a lift by plenty of living plants. The freshly renovated break room with its huge, cosy sofa completes the redesign.

Inselspital, University hospital Bern

Inselspital Bern uses defined standard for workspaces.

More efficient space management and easier rotations.

The Insel Group's office concept was designed to establish operating principles and standards for use of office space throughout the Group. The goal was to facilitate efficient management of the space and simplify orientation during clinical rotations. The newly built "Anna-Seiler-Haus" is now the second project to put the new office concept into practice.

"The expert advice is what sets Lista Office LO apart."

Adress:	insel.ch

The concept

The Insel Group’s workplace standard was first developed in collaboration with Lista Office LO several years ago. "A uniform standard for the office outfitting makes it straightforward to manage the office space; in particular, it makes life much easier for rotations – the individuals have to relocate, but the surroundings are already fixed", explains Markus Wasmer, Subproject Lead in charge of the "Anna-Seiler-Haus" building project. The new block, opened in September 2023, is the main building at Inselspital Bern, and is now the second project to implement the Group’s workspace standard.

The working areas feature ergonomic sitting/standing desks, swivel chairs, and acoustic dividers. The main working areas are complemented by additional spaces such as meeting rooms and cubicles for telephone calls or dictation.

"When defining the workplace types, we select between ‘individual’ and ‘flexible’/‘neutral’", explains Markus Wasmer, describing the dynamic model. "If staff are spending several hours of their working day in a place, we want them to feel at home there." Other than lockers, the Insel Group has mostly avoided providing personalised storage space, focusing instead on the digital environment.

The shared-use areas feature wooden walls and colourful furniture and upholstery, which give these social areas fresh accents and a welcoming feel. The high quality of the design and materials used lift the ambience and help create a sense of wellbeing in these spaces, notes Markus Wasmer.

The Insel Group’s collaboration with Lista Office LO dates back many years. "We really value the rapid project handling from initial quote through to billing, paired with excellent advice", explains Markus Wasmer.

In addition to the office spaces, the cloakrooms for staff in the clinical areas were also implemented by the Insel Group/Lista Office LO partnership. These rooms feature plenty of storage space, with long rows of lockboxes and clothing lockers.

Cantonal Hospital St.Gallen

Green, orange, red –
a practical locker system

Cantonal hospital St.Gallen is a specialised, cross-regional medical centre covering eastern Switzerland. It provides basic care in the St.Gallen, Rorschach and Flawil region. The hospital participates actively in pioneering research projects and also carries out extensive teaching work. Due to this wide range of activities, the hospital employs a workforce of over 5,000 across many different fields – making it one of the biggest employers in eastern Switzerland. A new locker system has been introduced for the healthcare staff that meets the employees' and employer's efficiency requirements.

"This locker system provides us with a modern and contemporary solution that can be expanded in future in line with new requirements."

Branche:	Healthcare
Furnishing:	Lista Office LO – LO Ostschweiz, GANTNER Electronic GmbH
Planning:	LO Ostschweiz
Products:	LO Clothes lockers
Adress:	kssg.ch

The concept

There were a number of reasons why the Kantonsspital St. Gallen management decided to completely revamp the locker system at the hospital. However, one factor that was definitely especially important was the constantly growing number of lockers that were required due to the increase in part-time and/or cross-site employees. The chosen solution was to integrate an electronic lock system into the standard lockers from Lista Office LO. The lock system that was installed at Kantonsspital St. Gallen was produced by the company GANTNER Electronic and opens up a wide range of options.

Each employee has unrestricted access to one locker as well as time-limited access to one additional locker while they are on duty. The same badge also allows employees to access shared team storage space.

The lockers with electronic locks offer additional benefits:

- No more complex key management or lost keys
- Permanent LED status display on lockers and in walkways
- Real-time occupancy overview and analysis reports
- Audio and visual alarm function on lockers and network
- Vandal-proof
- Streamlined design with fully concealed lock

Schoolhouse Steinegg

Agility for mind and body in Steinegg Schoolhouse.

The LO Solo and LO Edge desks with their variety of desktop shapes – triangular, square, rectangular and semicircular – don't just make life easier and bring fluidity into the classroom. They open up completely new opportunities for both creative teaching and motivated learning.

Panta rhei – everything flows! The words of Greek philosopher Heraclitus encapsulate in a nutshell the vision for the refurbished classrooms in Degersheim Primary School. The goal: to introduce agility, versatility, and simplicity to the classroom with furniture that students could transform quickly, quietly, easily, and independently into the perfect learning environment for each situation. By transitioning the space from teaching in a circle to focused self-study, pairwork or groupwork as the situation demands, both students and teachers get a boost in motivation.

"The entire classroom has a completely different atmosphere: everything feels lighter and airier. We've created space. That has had noticeable positive effects on our students' thinking and motivation."

"Modern teaching is founded on using a variety of teaching methods. The new furniture system makes it easy to adapt and provide the versatility required. It takes little effort to switch between individual study, pairwork or groupwork. Contemporary pedagogical theory can be put into practice exactly."

Stefan Gübeli
Headmaster

The concept

To create the right conditions for implementing Swiss Learning Plan 21, the school wanted to refurbish the classrooms, following the principles of the Chur model. In this model, the learning environment and classroom layout play central roles. Students decide on and organise their ideal learning environment, so that the space itself and the furniture are fundamental to the classroom experience. To achieve this, it must be easy for students and teachers to transform the classroom without bustle or noise – chalk+talk teaching room for one unit, self-study or project workspace for the next. The furniture and design elements don't just meet functional and ergonomic requirements. They also play their part in creating a positive atmosphere and boosting motivation.

Paradiesli Schoolhouse

In the Paradiesli Schoolhouse, active learning is the order of the day.

The LO Edge desk and dividers from the LO Move system can be clicked together, making it child's play to implement Switzerland's modern learning plan Lehrplan 21, while also creating an ergonomic workspace.

Contemporary schoolteaching uses a variety of spatial settings for students to learn in. Sometimes the whole class is being taught as a block; sometimes small group discussions are underway; other times are for focused individual work. Thus today's classroom needs to be equipped for all these modes. The question: what's the best way to enable students to transition effectively between these different learning types within their classroom? Ideally, without causing a lot of noise or requiring outside help, and bearing in mind the limited space available in the typical classroom.

"The new arrangements create a completely fresh learning atmosphere for our students. We have been able to see immediate improvements to motivation and the students are enjoying school more."

The concept

Two model classrooms were designed, breaking away from the traditional school-room setup and showcasing a modern learning atmosphere. There were two key requirements: firstly, it needed to be easy for students to move the furniture around to create the right setting to match each task. Secondly, the arrangements should promote ergonomic working and encourage movement during teaching.

Lista Office LO

Office refurbishment – at the office outfitters!

Harmonising individual requirements with "shop window" effect.

Lista Office LO has given the offices at its own Arnegg site a complete makeover. Just as they would for any customer project, the specialist office outfitters came up with a design optimised to the needs of the people using the space. However, the refurbished premises also serve as a large showroom where visitors and customers can see the transformed space in action.

"The workstations and our working environment are a real-life test field where we can showcase what Lista Office LO and its partner can create."

The concept

Before the refurbishments, the Arnegg site was home to IT and Order handling. After the office refit, the CFO, HR, Controlling and Accounting departments also moved in. Lista Office LO treated the project like any customer project, reimagining the office space in line with user needs. However, here on its own premises it went one step further, creating a showcase of functional variety in the furnishings, designs and colour schemes. The result highlights the wealth of possibilities available from Lista Office LO and its trading partners. The newly refurbished Arnegg offices now represent a showroom for the company. "The delicate balancing act between spaces where people can work, and this showroom functionality, was the biggest challenge for this project," says Markus Basler, responsible for Project Development & Innovation at Lista Office LO.

Each team has its own clearly delineated zone with quiet oases created using room-in-room elements. There are also three meeting rooms designed for four to ten people. Mobile furniture transforms the large assembly room into a project work zone – and a space that is simultaneously perfect for customer presentations. The coffee area boasts a friendly colour scheme and a variety of seating options that make the space inviting for breaks, relaxing, discussions or work. This welcoming space, along with the newly open-plan offices, fosters casual encounters. Markus Basler is delighted by the results: "I value the personal contact with the different departments – I can ask questions or raise issues directly". Circular windows in the coffee area offer a direct view into the assembly workshop where Lista Office LO is busy manufacturing new office furniture for its customers.

"We used as many custom solutions as possible when selecting the tablespots and colour schemes for the counter furniture," says Markus Basler. "I believe it's part of our added value at Lista Office LO that we offer such a wide range of design options and can put together a highly individual scheme like this." Visitors and customers can take a tour through the offices and judge the results for themselves. For Lista Office LO's own staff, the new working environment is a living test environment. Their feedback helps improve how Lista Office LO advises its customers.
